

Vinh is a computer science student at California State University East Bay as well as co founder and director of Saefhoam Technologies, focused on integrated smart home solutions with a focus on security. For over 5 years Vinh was a member of many STEM pilot programs and technology initiatives in the New Haven Unified School District including the Department of Education's Race to the Top technology grant rollout, Project Lead the Way's Cisco systems Cyber Security course, and early access Engineering courses.